

Implications of Russia's invasion of Ukraine for global food markets and food policies

Webinar, 31 March 2022 16.00-17.00 CET

Organized by Wageningen University & Research (WUR) and Kyiv School of Economics (KSE)

Moderation:

Vanya van der Grift-Simeonova (WUR Manager Relations Eastern Europe & Russia)

Rico Ihle (Agricultural Economics and Rural Policy Group, WUR)

Program:

- 16:00 Vanya van der Grift-Simeonova (WUR): Introduction of speakers
- 16:01 Louise Fresco (President WUR): Opening
- 16:05 Mariia Bogonos (Head of the Center for Food and Land Use, KSE):
The role of Ukraine in EU and Middle East food markets
- 16:10 Kees Huizinga (Large-scale Farmer in Ukraine):
Implications for Ukrainian agricultural production
- 16:15 Oleg Nivievskiy (Vice President of Economic Education, KSE):
Implications for Ukrainian food trade
- 16:20 Hubertus Gay (Senior Agricultural Policy Analyst, OECD):
Implications for OECD countries' food trade and policies
- 16:25 Roel Jongeneel (WUR):
Effects on EU and Dutch food markets and policy needs
- 16:30 Jacob Waslander (Envoy to the Middle East and North Africa for Water, Energy and Food at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of The Netherlands):
Implications for food security in the MENA
- 16:35 Rico Ihle (WUR): Summary of speakers' propositions and opening of discussion
- 16:42 General discussion with audience
- 17:00 End of the webinar